VOL. XI. NO. 46.

CROSSFIELD, ALBERTA, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26th, 1915

PRICE $1.50 A YEAR.

WM. LAUT

IT IS DISAGREEABLE

To send or receive an account with a footnote on it such as "Please," "Your kind attention is requested," "Please remit," etc. Our accounts are never rendered unless they are due. Our terms are, and have been for years, strictly 30 days (Mail order houses and Calgary firms do not allow one day). Conditions in trade have changed greatly. It now requires nearly double the capital to carry on a business. Goods are scarce and difficult to procure. Formerly manufacturers and wholesalers were more lenient in their terms—now the majority of them ask for payment in ten days after the merchandise is shipped. Any thinking person can see the necessity for prompt payment. We ask it in the same courteous manner that we solicit your esteemed trade; both are necessary for our success.

This week upwards of 300 accounts, running from $3.00 to $300.00 will be sent out from our office, every one of them due and payable.

We believe the reason many are overdue is because the customer lacks ready money.

So do we.

We must money to carry on our business, and we must by all means get it.

We never like to make trouble of any kind for a patron of our store. Should it become necessary, he would probably lose more than we would.

It is hoped that all accounts leaving our office this week will be paid by December 15th.

We would like very much to carry these accounts for several months if we were strong enough—but we are not.

(We insist that at least some payment be made on each.)

Mt. Valiquette wishes to inform his numerous clients that during the epidemic just passed through, he was unable to come, but from now on he will be in attendance at the Alberta Hotel every Saturday.

The Red Cross Society are having a Tag Day, to-morrow Saturday, in aid of the Belgian Children's Relief Fund Christmas Tree.

The Women's Guild of the Church of the Ascension will meet on Thursday next, December 5th, at the home of Mrs. Woelger, at 8 p.m.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday next, 4th December, at the home of Mrs. Wilson McRory. As this is the last meeting of this year it is hoped that as many of the members will be present as possible.

A. C. Redford sold his barber business in town to Mr. Littlefield, of Carstairs, last week.

On Tuesday morning A. A. Hall and O. E. Coffin had a pitch-in on the road just north-east of town, A. Hall was going home with Mrs. Hall driving J. Cavander's car and O. E. was driving his Baby Grand. The occupants luckily escaped with a severe shaking-up. Mrs. Hall was the worst sufferer, getting her face badly scared. Needless to say both cars sought a garage in a very much battered condition.

A. C. Redford, of Crossfield, was hauled up on Monday afternoon with a car load of whisky. Police-constable J. Valk made the arrest at Strathmore. The case was taken before Magistrate Davidson at Calgary, on Tuesday. Redford, who was defended by J. O. Campbell, was liberated on bail of $2,000 cash. Remanded till Thursday. On the case coming up on Thursday morning he was found guilty. He received the option of a fine of $500 and three months imprisonment or a fine of $700 and two months in gaol, with $250 costs.

The lifting of the ban in connection with the influenza epidemic now rests with the different local authorities. In conversation with Dr. Whillans, the local Medical Officer of Health, on Wednesday evening, he said providing there were no further outbreak in town, the ban would be lifted locally on Saturday. This will mean the re-opening of the local School on Monday next. The school has received a thorough fumigating and cleaning.

See Dr. M. Meeklenburg, the Eye Sight Expert about your eyes, will again be at the Hotel, Crossfield, on Saturday, November 30th.

UNION CHURCH, CROSSFIELD. Services will be resumed on Sunday, and will be held at Rodney at 11 a.m., Elba 8 p.m., and Crossfield 7:30 p.m. The Government wishes all congregations to observe next Sunday as a day of Thanksgiving for Allied victories, and the signing of the Armistice.

The Sunday School will meet at 2 p.m. Mission Band will be held Tuesday afternoon instead of Wednesday at 4-15 in the Church.

HAROLD BINDLOSS

WARD, LOCK & CO., LIMITED
London, Melbourne, and Toronto

"We'll no gang in yet," said Pete. They skirted the mound, which was larger than Foster thought and broken in out cropping rock, and when a thick screen of birches rose between them and the building, crept into a nook among the stones. Foster imagined that the others might search for half the night without finding them unless they were lucky. The Pete remarked in a meaning tone: "There's just the two, and a haec a good stick."

Foster smiled. He was tired, wet, and savage, and would have liked to confront Graham and settle their differences by force, but the matter could not be treated in this primitive way. He could not shoot the men, and would be no better off if he overpowered and threw them in the bog. They would know where he was and would follow him as close as was safe, while he wanted to shake them off and make them uncertain whether they were on his track or not. Besides, they might avoid a conflict.

"The thing's too complicated to be straightened out by knocking somebody down," he said. "But I'm glad I'm not here alone."

In the meantime, the others were getting nearer, for Foster heard them splash through the wet moss and stumble among the rusty grass. They were walking fast, which indicated that they thought themselves some distance behind the fugitives, but stopped when they saw the birches, and then came on again cautiously. Foster could not see them until their blurred figures appeared among the trees. So long as the kept there was little chance of his being found.

The moonlight filtered through the low mist, which rose half way up the thin birch trunks on the top of the mound, but the shielding stood on a lower level, and when the light shined towards it the men's forms got very indistinct. They vanished, but he knew they had not gone far, for a stream of light flickered among the trees.

"A policeman's trick," Pete said in a low voice. "A poacher would not ha' let ye see the light."

Foster felt that he must find out who the men were. It was risky, but it was worth trying, and he crawled out from behind the stones. The rock was rough and wet; his hand plunged into some water, and he scraped his knee, but he made a few yards and then stopped and lay flat as the light went out. It looked as if the others had heard him, and he lowered his head until his face was buried in withered fern. There was silence for a few moments, and then his nerves tingled as he heard steps; the men, he thought, were coming out to look for him. He did not move, however, and the foot steps got farther off. By and by there was a sharp rustle and he cautiously looked up. Two hazy figures showed among the trees, but it was plain that they were going away. It was impossible to follow them without being heard, and he waited until Pete joined him. So far as he could judge by the noise they made the men were hurrying across the bog.

"They're awa', but I wouldn't say they'll no come back," Pete remarked. "If they dinna strike the right place, they'll no find it easy to cross the burn. She rins in a deep cut in the bottom's salt."

"What's likely to happen if they get off the track?"
"Weel," said Pete with a chuckle, "it's verra possible they'll stop in the flow till morning, maybe up to the knees in mire. I dinna think there's much reason they should get in deeper, but they might."

"But suppose they find the way and cross the burn?"
"Then, if they ken the country, I would expect them to head a bit south for Shoptford, where they could find an inn, or maybe west by the Clattering ford to Canobie. If dinna ken, it's likely they'll ha' to sleep behind a dyke. Noo, however, we'll turn back and gang up the dale."

They recrossed the bog and skirted the moor for some time, after which they went down a long slope and reached a level space of grass and heath. They followed it north until a light shone ahead and the barking of dogs indicated that they were approaching a farm. Pete went in first, and Foster did not know what explanation he gave, but the farmer told him to sit down when he entered the big, flagged kitchen. He was not surprised when a woman who came in looked at him curiously, because he was wet and splashed, and bits of fern and heath stuck to his clothes, but his hosts asked no questions and presently gave him supper.

Soon afterwards he was shown a comfortable room and went to bed, leaving Pete with the others in the kitchen. Foster was glad to feel he could be trusted not to tell them too much, although he would have liked to satisfy their curiosity to some extent. A hint went a long way with the reserved Borderers.

XIX

Alice's Confidence

Foster got up late and after breakfast by the kitchen fire, studying his map. He imagined that the pursuers, believing him to be in front, would have crossed the low ground towards the cultivated valley of the Esk, where the would not have trouble in finding shelter for the night. Then, if they thought he was making for the Garth, the railway would take them up Liddesdale.

He meant to visit the Garth, although this might prove dangerous if Graham and his companion watched the neighborhood. So long as Pete was close at hand, the risk might not be great, but Pete could not be with him always and he thought Graham would stick at nothing to get his papers back. One of the gang had killed Fred Hutton, and Foster did not suppose the others would hesitate about getting rid of him, if it could be done without putting the police on their track. A shot or stab in the dark would effectively prevent his betraying them, and it might be to look like an accident, or perhaps as if he had killed himself. Foster, as a rule, distrusted anything that looked abnormal or sensational, but admitting that he might be in some danger. For all that, he was going. There was no need for an early start, because he did not want to arrive in daylight and the distance was not great. Then he meant to avoid the high roads, and after a talk with Pete picked out his route across the hills. It was eleven o'clock when they set off, and they spent an hour sheltering behind a dyke while a snowstorm broke upon the moor. The snow was wet and did not lie but the soaked grass and ling afterwards clung about their feet and made walking laborious. The sky was grey and lowering and there was a bitter wind, but they pushed on across the high moors, and when the light was going saw a gap in a long ridge in front. Foster thought this might be the way down to the Garth.

It was nearly dark when they reached the gap, through which a brown stream flowed, and he could see nothing except dim hillsides and the black trough of the hollow. Pete said they must follow the water, and they stumbled down hill among the stones beside the burn. As they descended, a valley opened up, and a rough track began at a stone sheepfold. Although it was dark, Foster saw that they were now crossing rushy pastures, and they had to stop every now and then to open a gate. The stream was swelling with tributaries from the hills and began to roar among the stones. Birches clustered in the hollows, the track became a road, and at length a group of lights twinkled across a fir wood and he knew the Garth was not far ahead.

Obeded Orders

The Canuck was sent to the rear with a Hun prisoner to where the eagles yawed for him, but he returned much too soon to have made the journey and the captain was a wee bit suspicious.
"What became of your prisoner?" he asked.
"He stopped, sir," said the Canuck, "and as I had no orders to halt, sir, I kept right on walking and unfortunately my bayonet went right through him, sir."

Lincoln's Steadfastness

I do the very best I know how—the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, good; if not, it doesn't matter a bit. I will stand against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference.—Abraham Lincoln.

Correct style worn by well dressed young men in all localities. Last boot—medium narrow recede toe, low heel—made in black, tan or patent calf. Price, $7.00 to $10.00.

Style—Plus Service at a Fair Price

THE style illustrated above is one that is largely preferred by Canadian business men—especially young men. It has the medium long vamp and narrow, somewhat pointed toe which gives the foot a slim and "dressed" appearance, without being extreme in style. Those who like this type of shoe will find it thoroughly satisfactory in fitting qualities and a comfortable easy shoe to walk in.

This style can be obtained in several grades of black and tan. The price range—$7 to $10—considering the present leather market, is extremely moderate.

Next spring a shoe of the same wearing qualities will cost from ten to twenty per cent more. It would cost more now except for the fact that the resources of this company enable us to cover our needs well in advance.

The People of Arctic Russia

Natives Live in Huts and Cottages

Made of Logs

"Among the strange and little-known peoples dwelling in remote and trackless regions of the far north are the primitive native races of arctic Siberia. Their vast habit extends from the extreme corner of northeastern Asia for thousands of miles inland and along the Arctic Ocean. Two of these peoples, the Yakuts and Koryaks, are especially interesting.

"The Yakuts are the largest and most cultured of all the primitive races of Siberia. They live in the great province of Yakutsk.

"The extreme northern part of their country is the coldest region on earth, the temperature falling to 80 and 90 degrees below zero. Here the soil is eternally frozen for hundreds of feet below the surface; even at the height of summer, only a yard of unfrozen soil veneers the admixture of earth and ice, affording foothold for the gray tundra-moss and occasional patches of grass and dwarf willow.

"The natives live in youtas, or semi-underground huts, and a few one-story log cottages, as do the Russian administrative officials. For 10 months the country is a dreary, trackless sea of driven snow, with far lower temperatures than the regions about the north and south poles. During the brief summer thaw of two months, the tundra, as the open country is called, is an impassable swamp.

"The Yakuts are the most numerous tribe of Eastern Siberia, numbering some 250,000, and are typical representatives of the culture of the Turkish tribes of Central Asia. In spite of their present isolation from the other branches of the Turkish race and their probable mixture with the Mongols and others, the Yakuts, in the course of their migrations, have preserved one of the oldest and purest dialects of the language spoken by the Kirghiz, the Tartars and other Turkish peoples."

Army Likes Sweetness

An army order for $75,000 25-cents cans of blackberry and plum jam to a canner shows the huge demand being made upon Oregon for canned fruit products. The filling of this immense contract will require 34 million pounds of sugar. This is the largest order of its kind made by the U. S. government for sweets for soldiers.

Maxims are the condensed good sense of nations.

"Your lunch will be fresh and tasty at dinner hour to-morrow. It is wrapped in Para-Sani."

PARA-SANI WRAPPER

Heavy, waxed paper in Household Rolls, with handsome Oak Roller-Box. Para-Sani is cheaper and more convenient than waxed paper in loose sheets and the paper is of better quality.

Para-Sani is moisture-proof, air-proof, germ-proof. Sandwiches, cakes, bread, cheese can be kept fresh and wholesome if wrapped in Para-Sani. Para-Sani will save many times its cost by preventing waste.

He reports eighty-three cases of various bone and joint diseases cured in from three weeks to seven months.

A Minneapolis laundress, a negro woman, patriotic supporter of the Red Cross, was among the thousands who witnessed a recent Red Cross parade in the Mill City in which fifteen thousand white-clad women participated. What "Y. M. C. A." Means
The officiating minister at the Welsh chapel in the hills was of English extraction, but he did his best with the Welsh names in the intimation given him to read from the pulpit. This was the conclusion of his announcement:

"And, dear friends, on Friday night there will be the usual meeting of the Yumka."
The congregation was mystified as to the identity of the Yumka—all except the author of the document, who knew he had written "Y.M.C.A."—London Chronicle.

THE ONLY MEDICINE THE BABY NEEDS

Baby's Own Tablets is the only medicine a mother needs for her little ones. They are a gentle but thorough laxative which instantly relieves all stomach and bowel disorders thus banishing all the minor ills of little ones. Concerning their Mr. J. Levesque, St. Simon, Que., says: "Baby's Own Tablets are a marvelous medicine for little ones. They never fail to cure stomach and bowel troubles and neither my sister-in-law or myself would use any other medicine for our little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Aviators' Slang
The British airman is an adept at inventing slang terms. The latest additions to the vocabulary of the R. A.F. are "To blind," to dash along at a reckless, unseen pace; "to go dis," to break down; "bunking" is shelling; "insurance agents" are enemy bombing planes; while "an attack of severe vertical gusts," is the feeling that follows the explosion of a shell before one realizes whether it is high explosive alone or high explosive and gas mixed.

A safe and sure medicine for a child troubled with worms is Mother Graves' Worm Extirminator.

The now familiar "Somewhere in France," receives elucidation at the hands of a British soldier after this fashion: "I am sorry I cannot tell you where I am, because I am not allowed to say. But I venture to state that I am not where I was, but where I was before I left here to go where I have just come from."

Minard's Liniment Cures Colds, etc.

Three kinds of tanks are now used in the French army: A 24-ton tank with a crew of eight, a 13-ton tank with a crew of six, and a 6-ton tank worked by two men. German tanks weigh 35 tons.

Cavalry Still Useful

This Arm of the Service Is Not Obsolete

The successful use of cavalry in driving the Germans out of the St. Mihiel salient is another reminder of the danger of concluding that this or that arm of the service has been rendered obsolete by the modern conditions of warfare. If the war has taught us anything it has taught us the futility of this kind of thinking. What appears a permanent development proves merely temporary; one arm of the service goes out of use, but almost before we realize it comes back again. War of movement is succeeded by trench war, but trench war gives way to war of movement again. We see the largest calibre guns playing the main part in the campaign, but just when we have become accustomed to the thought of them as perhaps the dominant factor, smaller calibers are used increasingly—and the Germans lay particular stress on the value of machine guns even in heavy fighting.

Impurities of the Blood Counteracted—Impurities in the blood come from defects in the action of the liver. They are revealed by pimples and unsightly blotches on the skin. They must be treated inwardly, and for this purpose there is no more effective compound to be used than Farnette's Vegetable Pills. They act directly on the liver and by its help up healthy processes have a beneficial effect upon the blood, so that impurities are eliminated.

The Retort Courteous

"You know," said the lady whose motor car had run down a man, "you must have been walking very carefully. I am a very careful driver. I have been driving a car for seven years."

"Lady, you've got nothing on me. I've been walking for fifty-four years."

Minard's Liniment Cures Diptheria.

Not His Puncheon

"I want to know," said the grim-faced woman, "how much money my husband drew out of the bank last week."

"I cannot give you that information, madam," answered the man in the cage.

"You're the paying teller, aren't you?"

"Yes, but I'm not the telling payer."—Boston Transcript.

ANY CORN LIFTS UP, DOESN'T HURT A BIT

No foolishness! Lift your corns and calluses off with fingers—It's like magic!

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn, can harmlessly be lifted right out with the fingers if you apply upon the corn a few drops of freestone, says a Cincinnati authority.

For little cost one can get a small bottle of freestone at any drug store which will positively rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain. This simple drug does the moment it is applied and does not even irritate the surrounding skin while applying it or afterwards.

This announcement will interest many of our readers. If your drugist hasn't any freestone tell him to surely get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.

A Sea Surprise

It may be early days to remind the reader that Germany has two strings to her bow—her military offensive, her peace offensive, and her navy. Be sure that when, and if, the two first have definitely failed, the third string will be pulled, and be sure that the Germans are preparing and will endeavor to spring upon us a tactical surprise by sea, as they did by land, and that this will not be unconnected with some new use of the mine, submarine, and torpedo boat.

BRILL

Many countries can tell both time and weather by the behaviour of the flowers. The Scarlet Pimpernel is commonly known as the "Poor-man's weather glass," and the cost of the dinner is timed by "John-go-to-bed-at-noon," which is almost unknown by its proper name of "Glaet's Beard."

Knew His Destination
"Going to France?" asked a traveling man at the station of a negro soldier.
"No, sah! I'm not going to France," replied the dusky soldier. "I'm going to Berlin, but Ah may stop in France for a short time on the way."—New York Telegram.

Miller's Worm Powders will not only expel worms from the system, but will induce healthful conditions of the system under which worms can no longer thrive. Worms keep a child in a continual state of restlessness and pain, and there can be no comfort for the little one until the cause of suffering be removed, which can be easily done by the use of these powders, than which there is nothing more effective.

Folk Names of Flowers

Tell Time and Weather by Their Behaviour

Quaint and pretty are the names given to flowers by the English country folk, who manage thereby to express peculiarities of form or color, or mood or moral factors. Thus Honesty is "Money-in-the-pocket," a maximum not always true outside the cottage garden; Columbine are "Grannies' Bonnets," Calceolarias are "Fishermen's Baskets," while the spikes of Larkspur are "Noah's Arks."

The "Virgin Mary's Milk Drops" has a white spotted leaf and the Balm is a "Jacob's Ladder." Many other flowers also have a spice of plety in them. So the harebell became a "Fairycup" and the Melick's tiny bouquet of wee golden bells was "Love's first kiss."

One counter people believed in fairies and the like and practically imagined that certain flowers were fairies. So the harebell became the "Fairycup" and the Melick's tiny bouquet of wee golden bells was "Love's first kiss." Nor is the gentle pansy forgotten as "Love in a mist" and "Love's bleeding" testify while surely "Lads' Love" is a fragrant as the memory of a first love.

Many countries can tell both time and weather by the behaviour of the flowers. The Scarlet Pimpernel is commonly known as the "Poor-man's weather glass," and the cost of the dinner is timed by "John-go-to-bed-at-noon," which is almost unknown by its proper name of "Glaet's Beard."

Merciful Bombing of Austrian City

The text of the leaflets dropped on Austria by an Italian air squadron commander, Major d'Annunzio, the text was as follows:

"Viennese! You are to be taught to know the Italians. We are flying over Vienna. We could drop tons of bombs, we are dropping greetings in three colors, the colors of liberty. We do not make war on women and children. We are making war on your government, the enemy of national liberties, on your blind government, which does not know how to give you bread, feeding you on hatred and illusion. You are intelligent. Why have you adopted the Prussian uniform? All the world is against you. If you wish to continue the war it is your suicide. The distance covered by the raiders was about 621 miles, 497 miles being over enemy territory. One machine only was lost."

It soon gave me relief and it was not long when I was strong and healthy. 'Favorite Prescription' was surely a great help to me. I am glad to recommend it."—Mrs. J. M. Marry, 41 Kent Lane.
